How the Bostonians Dodge their Li-QUOR LAW .- All sorts of schemes are resorted to by liquor dealers to furnish their customers with the proscribed beverage, and although the members of the constabulary have proved quite yigi'ant, they have thus far failed to detect miny of the ingenious tricks practised upon them. A gentleman who knows, states that he has seen barrels of flour, apparently taken away from stores, which in reality, were casks of liquor, with enough flour placed at the top and bottom of the barrel inside to give it that appearance when moved, one cask being firmly wedged in each flour barrel. Great care is manifested in giving the orders to teamsters: "Call at — and get — barrels of flour," but after the goods are loaded, if not prepaid, the driver is somewhat astonished to find that he is not transporting flour, but rum cr whiskey. Sewing machine cases, boot and shoe boxes, and dry goeds cases are also called into requisition by the dealers, and it is ascertained that the cellers of some of the dry goods stores are leased for the purpose of concealing liquors, the same being carried back and forth in the large quare cases generally used by dry goods dalers to that the liquor might be loaded before the eyes of an officer without exciting his suspicions. A few days since, an expressman received an order to call for a box of currants. from the cracks between the boards. The odor that arose from the box was similar to that of Madeira wine, although the driver delivered the box as one containing currants, and received pay accordingly. In one instance, it is said, a barrel of whiskey was concealed in a molasses hogshead, and hay and stone packed around it to make up the usual weight of a hogshead of molasses, and it was then sent to a grocer, who deals in the ardent on the sly, probably keeping a small amount only in his store, and secreting the rest in his or some friendly neighbor's house. - Boston Traveller.

The sun has a period in about ten years in which he is free of spots. The greatest numbers were seen about the years, 1842, 1852, and 1862; the least number, or none, in 1847, 1857, 1867. Five or six years ago, when we had a rainy Spring, certain would-be philosophers explained it by the great number of sunspots, which diminished the usual heat radiating from its surface; but now the same philosophers say that by its present freedom of spots, and its consequent greater heat, an unusual quantity of water is evaporated, and of course has to come down as rain. They have indeed, a handy rule which works both ways, contrary, in the Northwest, at the present, rightly belonging to them.

It is pretty well established that the heat which the whole earth receives from the sun is nearly alike every year, spots or no spots; that the total quantity of water evaporated from the ocean, which occupies about threefourths of the surface of the earth, is also blike, and the amount of rain falling over the whole surface is consequently also the same .--Every region of the earth's surface has its yearly share of this rain, which, however, differs greatly for different climates, but is as a rule uniform. The northeastern States, for instance, receive yearly forty inches, the southeastern more than fifty, and some of the south-Western not more than one-tenth part of that amount. But occasionally this average quantity is disturbed, and one part of the country receives a portion of the share of another, for reasons we are not always able to trace; in fact, the laws of meteorology are very complex, and the whole science is still a most mysterious problem.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A FAMILY WITHOUT A NEWSPAPER. -- Nothing presents a sadder commentary upon the present unhealthy condition of our once loved and prosperous country than the large number of families both in the city and country, but more especially in the lafter, that subscribe to no paper of any kind. Hundreds and thousands of families are thus growing up in utter ignorance of what is daily transpiring in the world around them-ignorant of the mighty events of to-day. But who can tell the vast amount of injury that is being inflicted upon the rising generation-those who are to take our places in the busy world at no distant day-growing up without any knowledge of the present, the past, or any study of the future-and this ignorance, too, being imbued into them by the sanction of those who should and doubtless do know better, did they only think of the injunous effects of their insane course. Let the head of every family think of this and place in the hands of those for whom he is responsible, the means of acquiring a thorough knowlers is called. edge of the moving panorama in which we enact our parts. - North Carolinian.

THE SMALL INDUSTRIES. -The New York World, when urging upon the South the multiplication of its industrial occupations, gives the following impressive illustration of the value of cultivating the minor industries: "The Oneida Community, which financially, is one of the most successful of the modern associations, made its way very feebly for years, and barely lived, so long as the members devoted themselves solely to farming. But when they commenced to can their fruit for market, and to manufacture traps, satchels, and other useful articles, they became prosperous and even wealthy. Those thrifty communists, the Shakers at New Lebanon, are the times, at shrewd enough to cultivate small industries as well as broad acres."
